

NATIONAL ORGANIZATION for
ARTS IN HEALTH

NOAH Arts in Health Pre-Conference Workshops

Austin, Texas

Sunday, October 7

9:00 am-4:00 pm

NOAH members $100

Non-NOAH members $125

Registration: coming soon!

Workshop I: Introduction to Managing Arts Programs in Healthcare Facilities

Session Leader: Patricia Dewey Lambert, Ph.D.

This full-day session will provide a “crash course” on all the essentials of initiating, developing, building, and sustaining successful arts programs in healthcare facilities like hospitals, hospices, and long-term care. For new healthcare arts administrators or for those interested in expanding their professional practice, this session will introduce a toolkit of strategies and approaches for effective leadership and management in this field. This session will launch the new NOAH Arts in Healthcare Management Handbook, and will also offer breakout sessions for small groups to interact with selected NOAH board members and volunteers to address specific questions and challenges.

Workshop II: Exploring and Building the Intersections of the Arts and Public Health in the United States

Session Leader: Jill Sonke, MA

The Arts in Health field is poised to transform public health as it has healthcare in recent years. With the overarching goal of creating stronger and healthier communities through the arts, a national initiative is being launched to bridge the arts and public health sectors. You are invited to be a part of this initiative. This pre-conference session is part of a series of events taking place across the country to explore and expand the intersections of the arts and public health. With a focus on wellness and health communication, we’ll utilize a structured, fun, and action-oriented format for sharing knowledge and practice, and for transforming public health through the arts.

Learn more about our conference at www.thenoah.net

Please direct any questions to director@thenoah.net